SUBSTITUTE FOR COTTON .- The annual report of the Secretary of State on Foreign Commerce, for 1859, contains a despatch from F. S. Claxton, our Consul at Mescow. in relation to the economical use in Russia of a fibrous plant as a substitute for cotton in the manufacture of coarse cloths. This plant, whose botanical name is Asclepids Comuti, he states, is said to be a native of tion, and, after undergoing a process, as yet the cloth which I have seen, and of which a specimen is promised me, compared favorably with cotton goods, Nos. 50 to 60 "picks" to the inch.

It is represented as a hardy plant, withstanding well the climate of this latitude, and is propagated from a seed sown in May and maturing in September; it is then cut and dried in the open air, or water-rooted, like hemp, to be afterwards broken and husked in the same manner.

Its subsequent treatment is the secret of the inventor, who has the sole privilege in Russia for ten years, which he has disposed of at a large price, and which he proposes securing by patent in England and France. The estimate put upon the value of this process for the United States, is extravagant, considering the price of cotton and its probable depreciation, in case all that is claimed for the invention is realized. I think the secret may be purchased by a little management for two or two thousand five hundred roubles.

The inventor admits that to manufacture. wholly from this material will involve some changes in the "speeders and spinners," but asserts that, mixed in equal proportions with ordinary cotton, no change will be necessary. He estimates the cost, all labor, &c., included, at four copecks per lb .- one hundred copecks equals one rouble, one rouble seventy-five cents.

LORD BROUGHAM .- The Scotsman savs: --A very significant compliment to Mr. Gladstone's oratory, and a very striking incident in itself, appears not to have been marked by our London cotemporaries. We mean the of the House of Commons for the first time of the whiskeys in general use. during very nearly thirty years-that is, since he left it in 1830 to become Lord Chancellor. It is pretty well known that Lord most pain and reluctance-that his own most | that it is entirely free from poisonous or deleteriwhich necessitated the abdication of his po- flavored quality of Whiskey. sition as a member for Yorkshire, and that he took a position nominally and titularly so often echoed with his eloquence. On Fri- pectfully, day night, for the first time, he overcame this remarkable reluctance, and then, too, for the first time, it is understood, he heard the man who now occupies the position he himself so long held unrivalled and undispued-the greatest orator in the British House

WEALTH OF OLD ROMANS .- According to ting out for Spain, is reported to have said varied assortment of himself, that he was $10,000,000 worse than FARMING IMPLEMENTS, nothing. When he first entered Rome, after which they will be found prepared always to furcrossing the Rubicon, he took from the pub- nish on the most accommodating terms. civil war put over $,24,000,000 in it. He variety of purchased the friendship of Curio with a PLOWS AND CASTINGS, bribe of over $2,500,000, and of the Consul L. Paulus, with half that sum. Crassus was worth in real estate, over $8,000,000, and about as much in money, furniture and slaves. Seneca was worth over $20,000,000 .- Reaping and Mowing Machines. Leutulus, the augur, over $16,000,000. Augustus raised by the testaments of his friends nearly $161,000,000. Tiberius left at his death nearly $109,000,000, which Caligula spent in less than one year; and Vespasian at | Herds Grass Seed, &c. his succession, said that he required for the GUANO, BONE DUST, support of the State over $1,614,000,000 .--Nevertheless, though greatly enriched by her conquests, imperial Rome never came into the full inheritance of the chief wealth of the East, and the larger quantity of the precious metals must have remained excluded from the calculations of aucient historiaus.

QUEER FEMALE CUSTOMS .- A New York correspondent, in referring to some queer speaks of the almost universal habit of chewing gum, and adds: "Another custom is the lected stock of chewing of a small aromatic seed called the caromel; it is quite costly, bringing the round sum of $2 per pound. The ladies nately. It has a pungent, biting taste, not unlike a modified or subdued pepper. The use of lavender is also quite common, as ladies say it adds to the brilliancy of the eyes -if not to the glibness of the tongue.-Arsenic is used to make the complexion more brilliant. Ether is not wholly excluded from the arsenal of those who resolve to defend themselves against the assaults of time; and painting is quite as common as dressing
